

Great careers aren't always planned; often they're discovered. Everyone has their own path.

Interview a dyslexic person you admire about their career journey so far for a podcast or a blog.

Here are some questions you could ask them:

What parts of your career have been planned?

What has your career journey been so far?

What parts of your career have happened by chance?

How do you use your strengths at work?

How do you make career decisions?
